

Abstract

Circuit element with timing control

A circuit element has an input for receiving an external clock with a clock period duration. A unit is provided to present the circuit element with information representing the clock period duration of the external clock. In addition the circuit element includes a unit for the temporal control of a signal in the circuit element on the basis of information representing the clock period duration.